Post Your Comment 183 Comments Your game just isn't compatible with mine. I have built the base game 5 times and every time a save file is created it can not load my save and gives an error. I've tried using the CD and can not load my save either. Since you say it is playable on a variety of PC's I will play it on my own computer but when the time comes to import the game I will not be able to play. I'd be very grateful if you would fix the save error. If you want I can e-mail you the game code on my e-mail and you can fix the error and please leave the files on your site so that people like myself can use it. Yours, Robin I have a weird bug. Ingrid Penance was born with a genetic disorder that will give her a life-long set of twisted facial characteristics. When Ingrid was a small child, she may have started to have suspicious claims towards Children's Hospital St. Jude's and she definitely wasn't alone in those claims, cause it's the complete truth: Doses of St. Jude's drug trial bears little importance for children and many side effects don't matter in comparison to it's benefits. When Ingrid started to fill out the forms for getting into St. Jude's, she is caught by the resident doctors after she had fainted in the city hospital nearby. This fainting may have been the first sign of things to come; she is now deeply in love with these doctors, especially Dr. Mason. Well, we all know that poor kids are often targeted on their looks and this doctor doesn't discriminate at all. Dr. Mason is a brilliant pediatrician but a selfish bitch who is feeding her jealousy towards her colleague Dr. Lawson directly from his kids. As she grows up, Ingrid starts to be wary of Dr. Mason and the whole impact he's having in her life. Ingrid had seen enough of not-so-pleasant impressions from people who met his kids and she knows how lucky Dr. Lawson's kids are to be at safe hands under the swashbuckling Dr. Mason. How will it all kick off? Read the full chapter, Creepy Tale 3: Ingrid Penance, and find out if the character gets what she deserves! The hospital barely knew what to make of it, Doctor Mason was usually good with children and he loved children as well. They thought he was having a relapse because of it. "Oh, God, what's wrong with him?", Doctor Lawson became worried. "Doctor Mason," Doctor McKeecick checked his pulse and heart activity. "His pupils are all dilated and unresponsive. But still...can you see anything else?" "He didn't inhale when he fell. But...you know our Dr. Mason. He's a little bit different from others, he takes in the conditions of the body, his "Aha!" she thought. "How are you doing, Mason?" "I don't know, Daniel," the doctor sounded low at the moment. "You've only had those symptoms for the last 5 minutes...mad
