I'm running Websphere Portal Server 8.5.5.1 under Ubuntu Linux Server 12.04. I am creating a REST server that executes few long (one hour) jobs each day. What I want to do, is to make a great use of the server by using concurrent I/O threads (so that the server can execute many concurrent jobs). I have read that Websphere is not supporting this, so I am opening a second server that runs I/O threads and get the result. This works fine as long as I have only one server. However, when I have two servers and one starts
