About the developer: Created by 2 real life friends who have been playin... If you like the old NES games, then you should definitely try out this one. The basic concept of the game is pretty simple, you control an action hero in a run & gun beat em up/shooter. You can move pretty well using the WASD keys, jump and hover around the screen. You can get up close to enemies with the mouse, and use guns to either fire at the screen, or make your hero shoot the enemies. Lots of items to be found too, weapons, armor, healing items, amulets, rings, staves, potions, etc. Run and gun mode, where you can fire the guns of the Hero class, and can't run as fast as you could in the adventure version of the game. (but you can jump more easily) (1) Action game made from 0 to 10 000 levels (2) Dangerous levels with hordes of monsters and traps (3) Animations, super particle effects (4) Advanced physics engine, detailed environment model, particles system, blood splatters (5) Fun support team, always ready to help and answer to questions (6) Game Center Leaderboard (7) Achievements (8) Game Center Achievement "Best Game of the Month" (9) Game Center Achievement "100 Levels in 1 Day" (10) Game Center Achievement "1000 Kills" (11) Game Center Achievement "1000 Kills with 1 gun" (12) Game Center Achievement "Level Restricted" (lots

The Ruins of Delta Polaris The ruins of Delta Polaris are littered with unspeakable atrocities, and the scattered outposts of various "Nile" factions are only able to dally in the shadows. Factions vie for dominance in the ruins - others wait to exploit their strengths and shatter the status quo. Within the ruins, a Hellbound cult rages. The cult's leader plots his will on the ruins' inhabitants and the denizens of "no-man's land." Only you can save the denizens of Delta Polaris from the Hellbound cult. You'll have to sacrifice the people you care about and the homes they live in - you'll even have to sacrifice your own soul. The choice is yours. You can return the people of Delta Polaris to their home, restore the "no-man's land" to its original purpose of a buffer zone between the factions, or call the gods' judgment on the cult. ### What's new in Hellbound: The Awakening:

Part III Light, returning I am back to quaffing from your lips, and to being embraced by you, to being revived by your whispers. I am charged with new ecstasies by our love and with new powers by your moist touch. Yeah, I know what you're thinking, but there's nothing I can say for sure beyond what I've always said. I suspect that me and the boy are more than the sum of our parts and there's just now a chance to see what's enfolded in the deep. I am allison again, and now, see, you must stand up and start to undress your husband who is still sleeping. Allison, you are a wolf who specializes in lovemaking and your lover is no better man than I am. You will be napping on the morrow, but in your dreams you are likely resting in the arms of your cousin, whispering the words that are now so clear. I am afraid no more, and I am happy and moved, all at once. When the sun is gone from the sky, I will come to you like a ghost, but when you awaken you will want to rise with me. We will do more than dawn, as one and your kindness and love will be returned. You are a woman of rare gifts, a wolf who bears a heart of gold. But the wild lamp is deep within us all. Love will set us one step further yet. Yeah, I know what you're thinking, but there's nothing I can say for sure beyond what I've always said. I suspect that me and the boy are more than the sum of our parts and there's just now a chance to see what's enfolded in the deep. ### System Requirements:

RAM: 3GB VRAM: 2GB Hard Drive: 2GB Nvidia: 64b Intel: 64b Might want to set your graphics to low or something... Also, if you are going to make the game for non-BlizzCon in-house crowds, I suggest a downgrade from 2GB RAM. The game runs MUCH slower in 2GB than it does in 3GB There is an annoying bug where the NPCs keep vanishing when you "take them all" in a city with a lot
